GO PAPERLESS

Help us continue to better achieve our mission by going paperless today!

Why make the switch? A large part of ASO's mission is conservation, but over the course of a year, we use more than 12,500 sheets of standard printing paper to mail the newsletter. Not to mention, mailing the newsletter takes money (printing and postage costs) and time (each mailing takes a group of 10 volunteers an hour to prepare).

Each person who receives a newsletter via email saves 15 sheets of paper per year and, best of all, gets the full color effect of The Meadowlark.

Signing up is easy. Simply email audubonomaha@gmail.com with the subject: "I want to go paperless."

For program reminders, follow us on Facebook!

NOVEMBER BIRDING OPPORTUNITY

Be sure to visit the ASO web page for information on a potential field trip on Saturday, November 4th.

REMINDER – NO PROGRAM IN DECEMBER

True to our tradition, we will not have a program in December. Enjoy the Holidays and we look forward to seeing you in January.

Field Notes from the President: By Matt Miller

Hello, fellow ASO members! I have a quick update on the Hilltop Project that I brought up last November/December in my presidents notes. ASO was gracious enough to allow Fontenelle Forest to use our Audubon Prairie for seed collection to help add some diversity to the seed mix for the Hilltop Savanna seeding. In modern day restoration or reconstruction, high diversity local ecotype seed is valuable in establishing a healthy system that is resilient to invasive species, good for the soil, and beneficial for wildlife. The ASO prairie is an excellent place to collect remnant forbs, with a variety of blooms all growing season. Fontenelle Forest was very appreciative for the opportunity to partner with ASO and without this partnership the land prep would not have been possible, and with such a fertile seed source the Hilltop Savanna should be a beautiful reconstruction for years to come. If you are interested in helping ASO and Fontenelle Forest with the seeding of Hilltop Savanna look for updates on our calendar online for potential dates in early December.

Some exciting species collected included:

Liatris aspera- Button Blazing Star

Liatris pycnostachya- Prairie Blazing Star

Coreopsis palmate- Prairie Coreopsis

Veronicastrum virginicum- Culvers Root

Asclepias tuberosa- Butterfly Milkweed

Amorpha canescens- Lead Plant

Phlox pilosa- Prairie Phlox

Rosa setigera- Prairie Rose

Brickellia eupatorioides- False Boneset

Yours in conservation,
Matt Miller

Establishing a Bird-Friendly Backyard

By Bob Fuchs

"Many people this time of year are feeding birds, yet it can be dangerous to them if you locate your feeders in the wrong places. As we know, birds can be attracted to windows because they see the reflections and think they can fly through them. So as a first step, identify windows that reflect desirable habitat as ones you want to hang an exterior screen or hang BirdScreen, strings, ribbons or multiple decals, especially those that reflect UV light. Also, hang feeders either within 3 feet of windows so birds don't fly away from feeders at a high speed, or 30 feet away, so they have plenty of room to clear your house. In addition, reduce lighting that is directed upward, which can confuse night-migrating birds, avoid using insecticides on your property (birds will eat poisoned insects) or seed contaminated from the ground), and do not allow cats to roam free on your property. They are the biggest killers of songbirds, and will hide near feeders wherever they can. For more details, go to this link on the internet: <http://www.audubon.org/news/think-you-have-bird-friendly-backyard-think-again>"

Omaha Youth Birding Group

by Tisha Johnson

I was at Wehrspann Lake the other day walking my dog and birding. I see a Red-Tailed Hawk cruising over the treeline real slow. Then flying at a lower altitude moving diagonal and closer to the hawk was a Bald Eagle. So as soon as the hawk sees the eagle, it dives down towards it. The Bald Eagle must not see the hawk approaching because in no time it's right on top of him. Then just as a Top Gun pilot avoids enemy fire, the eagle tips its left wing down, and the whole body and wingspan completes a 360 rollover maneuver. It rights itself again and keeps flying, not changing its course one bit. The hawk flew on too as if nothing ever happened, and I'm left in a state of awe. All this action at 35 feet off the ground and 100 feet in front of me. This, my friends, is why we bird and watch wildlife.

Field Trips! Save the dates:

November 12th, 3:00pm
Lake Manawa or
Offutt Base Lake – Bellevue

December 16th, 9:00am
Fontenelle Forest – Bellevue

In November we will bring out the heavy weaponry - the scopes. We will be meeting at either Lake Manawa or Offutt Base Lake; there will be updates on both our Facebook page and the Audubon website detailing directions. Last time we were at Manawa, we observed a Merlin eating its lunch. This year we're hoping to see several species of waterfowl migrating through.

December marks the 118th annual Audubon Christmas Bird Count. Groups are asked to census both the species and numbers of birds on their assigned trails or roads in and around Bellevue. Last year the light was gray and made seeing the birds difficult, so our listening and birding by ear was essential. Our group was excited to hear and then spot an elusive Pileated Woodpecker. This year it's your chance to help us complete the mission.

Omaha Area Audubon Christmas Bird Count

The 118th running of the Omaha national/international Christmas Bird Count will be held on Saturday, December 16, 2017. It is held in Bellevue, NE / Glenwood, IA within a 15 mile diameter circle centered on the Base Lake east of Offutt AFB. The circle is divided into quadrants, two on the Nebraska side and two on the Iowa side. There are four quadrant captains and as many volunteers as possible to give a good coverage of the area. Birders of all levels are welcome. New birders will be put with experienced counters.

Please consider joining this year's CBC. You can count a half or full day with vigorous or gentle hiking, or mostly car birding. The count begins between 6 a.m. and 8 a.m. depending on quadrant assignment. A compilation potluck will be held at 5 p.m. at ASO's office in the Center Street Mall (1941 S 42nd St).

If you wish to volunteer to help with the count, please contact Rick Schmid at schmid_r@msn.com. For questions about the potluck, please email audubonomaha@gmail.com.
